

Marta Gehring

Marta co-founded TechSpark Academy in 2015, which has since educated over 2'000 young people across 12 of the best schools around Switzerland from Geneva to Zurich.

In 2020, TechSpark Academy was the recipient of Corporate Livewire Award for most innovative education specialist in Switzerland.

TechSpark Academy introduces young people to today's digital media, coding, cybersecurity and more, with a focus on practical, hands-on learning. The digital world is a key component of our young people's future, whatever education pathway and career they choose. TechSpark Academy is proud to partner with premium school throughout Switzerland to bring the digital learning reality to life.

Before setting up TechSpark Academy, Marta worked as a business development and marketing strategist with track record in Biotech and Medical Devices with leading multinationals and young innovators. She is passionate about bringing nascent technologies to market.

Marta also works as an educator in entrepreneurship with the University in Bern, and with Innosuisse, the Swiss Government's innovation arm, where she teaches at the EPFL innovation park.
